

Constrained PowerShell Endpoints

Aleksandar Nikolić, PowerShell MVP
Twitter: @alexandair

Why do we need constrained endpoints?

- A custom endpoint with reduced functionality, exposing a restricted set of commands to qualified users
- Different users/groups need permissions to do group-specific jobs on the same machine
- A building block of delegated administration

How to create a custom service using PowerShell remoting capabilities?

DEMO TIME :))